THE WOMAN I AM TODAY:

My name is Caroline Guy and I am serving a life sentence at SCI Muncy. I have been here for a period of twenty years. I was arrested at the age of 35, now I am 56 years old. Since I've been incarcerated, I have received various certificates of vocational and educational achievement. The Education Department has prepared me with the skills that I need which would help me to be productive and function in society or the outside world if I was somehow released.

I've also attended various counseling groups that help me to heal and grow by expressing my feelings and thoughts and sharing them with others. The group sessions have helped me to handle and cope with my problems, and to make good choices, decisions and to take responsibility for my actions. For this I am grateful.
